MILLERAND LAYING PLANS FOR CHOICE OF NEW MINISTRY

WILL CONFER SOON WITH HERRIOT, RADICAL LEADER.

POINCARE TO REST

Receives Many Requests to Write on European Political Situation.

Paris.—Premier Poincare intends to withdraw from politics for the time being, taking a complete rest, it is understood he will resign a leave from the senate so as not to appear in the debates following his retirement as head of the government.

M. Poincare has received requests from all over the world, particularly from America, to write articles giving both his views on European politics and his estimate of the 12 years as a government minister. He will resume his political activities when he considers the time ripe.

Meanwhile the question of who is to succeed to the premiership is easier put than answered and it provides ample food for speculation among the deputies who are already beginning to prepare for the opening of the chamber on June 2.

It is also revealing the full attention of President Millerand, who it is understood will take an early opportunity to confer with M. Herriot, the radical leader, on the political situation, so that the inter-relationship between the resignation of the Poincare ministry and the formation of a new cabinet will be as short as possible.

The composition of the new ministry depends largely on the attitude of the socialists, who form a large section of the bloc of the left. It is always been a cardinal principle of that party never to accept office, and a conference will be called at an early date to decide whether they will be asked to permit members of the party to accept portfolios in the new administration.

CONFERENCE IN UPROAR ON "RED" CHARGE

Springfield, Mass.—A charge that the Methodist church had been brought into ill repute as a supporter of communism and the threat of internationalism threw the Methodist Episcopal general conference into an uproar today.

The charge was made by Harry F. Ward, chairman of the Civil Liberties Federation for Social Service, beyond the jurisdiction of the conference.

Circulation by the Civil Liberties union of bulletins of the federation in regard to the arrest of a group of communists in Berlin county, Michigan, about two years ago, was the basis of a report by a standing committee which was adopted as the conference final action.

"The church must take action," said John C. Willis of the Michigan delegation. "The church has been brought into great reproach in Berlin county. We ask a deliverance whereby the church will know that the church does not stand for communism and the communists that seek the overthrow of the United States government."

Ward's chairmanship of the Civil Liberties union has been used as a smoke screen, the delegate continued.

Washington.—Secretary Hughes today declared to be "absolutely false" the statement that he "had anything to do with the sale of the steamship Maratha" to its former owners by the shipping board.

In a formal statement, prompted by the reading of correspondence before the house shipping board investigating committee, in which Secretary Hughes was said to have appeared for the former owners before becoming secretary of state, Mr. Hughes declared he had had nothing to do with the subject since he entered the cabinet.

Representative Davis, democrat of Tennessee, yesterday read the correspondence as well as records of hearings by the house merchant marine committee to show that Mr. Hughes in December, 1920, three months before he became secretary of state, was active as counsel for a Trieste corporation to have title of the ship, seized from Austria during the war, transferred back to that company. BETTER CONDITIONS FOR WOMEN, PLEA TO VOTERS' LEAGUE

Madison.—America will be as strong as her women. Miss Mary Anderson, chief of the women's bureau of the department of labor, declared in an address today before the Wisconsin League of Women Voters, that she said, many women do not receive a living wage.

Such accomplishments in behalf of the army of nations were earning women as her bureau has achieved largely have been due "to the efforts of interested women throughout the country who are fired by the desire to better conditions for women in industry," Miss Anderson said.

The 1920 census figures, she said, showed that 8,500,000 women are working in remunerative positions outside the home.

One out of every five women is a wage earner.

Over 4,000,000 women are working in producing and distributing trades.

There are 2,900,000 married women in industry.

An increase of 41 percent in married women working in manufacturing and mechanical industries in the last decade.

"According to the present economic organization of the country," the speaker summarized, "women are indispensable to the industrial world and the industrial world is indispensable to women in their struggle to earn a living."

Eighteen states in 14 states, she continued, showed that "although some women workers labor under satisfactory conditions, thousands of women have had unduly long hours, receive low wages, and are denied a reasonable standard of living and work in insanitary establishments with exposure to unnecessary hazard and danger, and with little provision in the plants for health."

Work too long.

"A study of the scheduled working hours of over 100,000 women in industry," she said.

OIL COMMITTEE AT END OF HEARINGS

Washington.—The senate oil committee today tentatively closed its hearings on the oil industry.

The committee, which has heard many colorful chapters to American legislative history since they began last October.

Adjustment was taken subject to call of the chair. Senator Walsh of Montana, the committee prosecutor, said he had no more witnesses to call, and would not ask for another hearing, unless the courts should rule that the committee had no right to demand a return of two pieces of additional testimony he added to the record.

Until there is a decision in the Senate contempt case, pending in the District of Columbia, the committee probably will stand in indefinite recess. Most of the information it has gathered already has been turned over to the law officers of the government.

Shenandoah Valley and Piedmont Sections Scenes of Desolation.

Richmond, Va.—With two known dead, hundreds homeless and property damage estimated at more than $2,000,000 relief and survey measures were under way today as slowly receding flood waters from rivers and streams swollen by recent torrential rains laid bare scenes of waste and desolation in the Shenandoah valley and Piedmont sections of Virginia.

The James river at Richmond, which at a stage of 15 feet above normal, swelled the city buildings along the waterfront, railroad operations and shipping, was the only stream empty today, from virtually complete reports, which had not begun to fall.

Here, Main street at the Union station, is under more than two feet of water and weather forecasters predict a further rise.

More than a dozen towns in the flood area today were recovering after more than 12 hours without light and power, while the many farmers, swayed by recent torrential rains, were being cared for by local volunteer relief agencies and individuals.

Thousands of acres of growing crops were inundated, miles of railroad tracks washed away, scores of bridges demolished and many highways wrecked.

He also suggests that a community basket picnic be organized on a big scale night, "be done in your very best and park square, during the season." BROWN APPROVES COMMUNITY WORK AT RIVERSIDE PARK.
 Steps taken thus far to put Riverside park in better condition are highly commended by V. K. Brown, Chicago park man, in a letter to the Gazette. Mr. Brown, who is superintendent of playgrounds and sports for the South Park system, spoke here in March and visited Riverside park at that time.

He writes: "I like your clean-up proposition. Immensely. It is just this sort of thing of getting citizens into personal action to do something for their city, which counts most. I believe in developing a community consciousness and civic spirit."

He also suggests that a community basket picnic be organized on a big scale night, "be done in your very best and park square, during the season." Such affairs are now being planned by ten of the parks belonging to the South Park system, as 20th anniversary celebrations in commemoration of the opening of these parks.

3 REQUISITES FOR IDEAL GIRL GIVEN

Dean of Milwaukee Vocational School Addresses 400 Mothers and Daughters.

Character, health and earning power are the three requisites for the ideal American girl of today, according to Mrs. Cora Belding, dean of the Milwaukee vocational school, who addressed a group of 400 mothers and daughters at the Baptist church Tuesday night at the Baptist church as the culmination of six mother-daughter banquets.

"You have heard it said time and again that the girls of today are worse than the girls of yesterday," said Mrs. Belding. "But when you were young your mothers said the same of you. Times have changed. It is true and girls are different today than they were yesterday. We simply must adjust ourselves to the new conditions. A few years ago the girl who was refined, the one who knew nothing about kitchen work, the girl who was a parlor ornament, and who had the fancy goods needed was the ideal girl.

"But the war has changed so much. During this period of reconstruction the ideal girl is the one who can adjust herself to all situations. Versatility is the keynote of success with the modern girl. The question comes, 'How do we possibly develop the ideal woman?'

"While the ideal can probably never be reached it can at least be aimed at. There are three vital requisites for the ideal American girl.

"Character Most Important. "First, particular attention must be paid to character, second to health and third to earning power. Character is the most essential constituent in the makeup of the girl. There are certain things that must be developed to be an all-around citizen. Courtesy comes first in character. It is that I do not mean the mere politeness of 'I beg your pardon.' Politeness is nothing but a veneer unless there is a background of sincerity. You must have respect for others, be considerate of other people's wishes.

"Obedience is a factor of character. It is the one word that the children of today do not like. I think it is because they do not understand the real meaning of the word. Parents can give advice to their children without becoming dictatorial. The idea of bossing children has gone by and in its place exists a friendly feeling between children and parents, who should be pals. Children should early in life be taught that advice is given because it is helpful. Not in the home alone but elsewhere must there be authority and children should be taught to expect to be obedient.

"Loyalty is lacking. "Loyalty is a phase of character that is sadly lacking in the people of today. You are not to be a place and find that the employees are knocking the people with whom they work and the people for whom they work. Loyalty is a good don't talk at all. We must help one another for none of us is perfect.

"Back of these three elements of character there must be a spiritual background. We all have souls which cannot be neglected. If we are to make for the ideal life, spiritual guidance early in life is vital. No matter what our religion, we all believe in an everlasting life, which cannot be approached without preparedness.

"What the religion will be is entirely up to the individual but by all means have a religion and see that you live up to it. Don't chance your religion without thoughtful thought and don't ever criticize any other religion.

"Good Health Necessary. "Health, the second qualification for the ideal girl, is more attention throughout the country than ever before. If people are sickly they are naturally irritable, irritable makes an unpleasant home in the home. If there is anything that a young girl should be taught it is the value and care of the body. Many women because of the ages of 40 and 45 are invalids only because they have never had the opportunities of health which are offered to the girl of today. If young girls are taught to care for their health it will save them much unhappiness in later life. Young girls must have sleep, exercise, and good food. Where there is health, there is happiness, as a general thing.

"Learn to be Independent. "Last of all, a girl should be taught the importance of a business power. I think that every girl, whether she come from a rich or a poor family, should be taught to be independent. No matter what our station in life, we never know what adversity may make us self-supporting. Every young girl should be taught at school to accumulate all of the knowledge possible and avail herself of every opportunity to become educated.

"From now on it is the educated class, providing desire accompanies education, that will lead to the top. Education pays if you get the right kind. The real true education is not schooling alone. The true educated person is not a person who gives to others because he has had unusual opportunities. We must serve if we would be really happy. Many a person is unhappy because he or she has not the vision of service, the only true key to happiness.

Rockwood, Milwaukee, field worker for the society.

The city council has given the society permission to hold the tag day here and the plan also has the endorsement of the Chamber of Commerce.

This organization has six districts with a superintendent in each, the late Rev. L. G. Cuthpole, Janesville, having been the representative in this section for several years. The society cares for Wisconsin children only, supplying homes in this state with children abandoned by their parents, those made orphans by divorce and others who are unfortunate enough to be born out of wedlock. They are looked after until they are 21. Mr. Zechel reports there are generally more applications for children than there are children to give.

MERCHANDISE TRAIN IS THIEVES' TARGET

Freeport, Ill.—Thieves broke into six cars of a fast west-bound merchandise train on the Chicago Great Western railroad, supposedly in search of a valuable silk cargo. The burglary gave rise to a report that a Chicago and Northwestern passenger train had been held up. There was no indication that the thieves obtained any loot. The train bore no silks.

There was still an hour to day-break.

The White Shirt Sleeve

An hour to day-break, un-checked and untrammelled, was stamped on Captain Francis Newcombe's face as he dressed now with savage, ferocious haste. He swore and snarled, making low, venomous sounds in the fury that possessed him. There was no longer room for the fear that last night, here in his room, had gnawed at his soul itself—fear of the unknown, there was no longer room for fear in any sense, whether born of the instigable, or whether it knew its source in man, or God, or devil—there was only murder, that alone, in his heart.

The blows were coming nearer and nearer home. Too near! And his efforts to strike one in return had resulted in little to her except so far! Disaster, ruin, that dangling gibbet chain, were inevitable if this went on. He had been too cautious perhaps! Well, that was ended now. He swore again—bitter, scathing, in his rage. The luck had been running against him. Even an old fool had tricked him—even a maniac, a cracked-brained idiot, and one almost in his dotage besides, had tricked him! Last night after he had read that infernal message at the hut he had made no effort to uncover the madman's horde—he had lain there waiting. Hours of waiting, patient waiting—listening—his revolver in his hand—the one chance the unknown might not have gone away, might have lingered, hidden in the foliage, to gloat—and die. He had waited in vain. Tonight he had gone back to the hut, only to find after all, who had telephoned the old madman's money, wherever else it might be, was not there. And then he had returned here—and read the unknown's strike swiftly, viciously, cunningly.

When, where, how would the next blow fall?—unless he could now strike the quicker, and strike surely! How much farther was it to the house of exposure? Tonight he had stood perilously close to its edge, hadn't he? If he had not been able to pull the wool over Polly's eyes with the spurious explanation that it was old Marlin who had telephoned, he would

He stood suddenly motionless, trembling with his coat half on, his working lips drawn for the moment tight together. Had it been, after all, merely a specious explanation? Was he so sure that it wasn't old Marlin, after all, who had telephoned? The old madman was cunning; and, granting that fact as a premise, his act last night in pretending to go to his money in the hut must have been prompted by suspicion of some sort. The money had never been in the hut. The bit of flooring that was loose with fish and the ground beneath, and the ground had never been disturbed—and this was true of everywhere else in the hut. The old maniac, then, was suspicious

TODAY'S MARKET

GRAIN

Chicago Review.
Wheat prices showed firmness early today, owing more to scattered buying based on unfavorable crop reports from Illinois and adjoining states, and on higher quotations at Liverpool. Adverse strikes in Argentina had been reported and tended to lift values. Besides, selling was restricted by unusually cool weather northwest and the uncertain outlook regarding farm legislation at Washington. Quotations, which changed from a shade decline to a slight advance, with May 1924 at $1.04 1/2, and July 1924 at $1.05 1/2, were followed by slight gains all around.

Later, the market was eased down by cooling orders to sell, which were in the hands of commission houses. Stocks, however, proved transient. The close was unsettled, at a shade decline to a slight advance, May 1924 at $1.04 1/2, and July 1924 at $1.05 1/2. Weather, too, for planting and sprouting, gave an upward trend to the corn market. After opening at a shade advance, July 1924 at $0.44 1/2, prices sagged a little and then secured 64 1/2.

On the subsequent dealings, corn paralleled the action of wheat. Corn closed unsettled, a shade to a net decline at 64 1/2. Oats were firm in sympathy with other grain. Starting unchanged in the morning, they advanced 1/4, but then burdened all around.

Turnings in hog values stended the provision market.

CHANGE IN FRENCH RULE LONG WAITED

More Flexible Administration Welcomed: Ruhr May Be Evacuated.

By DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright 1924, by the Janesville Gazette—Special Correspondence to the Janesville Gazette.

Washington—For more than a year, Washington has waited patiently for just what has happened in France in the last twenty-four hours—a change from the uncompromising nationalism of Raymond Poincaré to the flexibility of a new administration unembarrassed by the commitments of its predecessors. The evacuation of the Ruhr, long advocated by the United States government, and now the big stumbling block to the effective operation of the Dawes-Young reparations settlement may be agreed to by the new administration in France as a means of getting rid of the Ruhr, which has come into power in the French elections on promises to obtain the money needed to reconstruct the remainder of the devastated regions. An international loan to the French government, which was the subject of the application of the Dawes-Young plan, would give France a new financial start not only raising the value of the franc but also the credit of the country and increasing the internal debt.

The Poincaré Era
It was inevitable a year ago that the Poincaré administration would be wrecked on financial issues unless compromises were made. The gradual drop in the franc helped materially to soften the Poincaré attitude, but the rise of a labor ministry in Great Britain, together with the insistence of all the allied experts that the Ruhr should be evacuated to make Germany a single unit, forced Poincaré to change his mind. An important change in the whole situation and it is felt here that a new premier in France will be able to deal with the Ruhr in a more flexible manner than Poincaré had been continued in power. Isolation has in a sense been defeated in France. It is a premier of 12 years standing, a premier of France, takes hold once more, an international conference of the allies may be looked for. It was he who was overthrown last at the moment when an inter-allied agreement seemed possible. The policy he advocated then has been vindicated. He saw the need of making concessions to other allies in order to get an agreement on reparations. He was not as intransigent as his successor, M. Poincaré. In fact, the deadlock of the last year has been attributed solely to the nationalistic conceptions and stubbornness of Poincaré. The policy of Edouard Herriot, if selected premier, would no doubt follow the British policy.

Effect Here
While, no doubt, internal political issues influenced the French result, there is no doubt that externally the situation is looked upon as having been greatly improved by the change of ministry. The radicals in France are probably as eager as the laborites in Great Britain for a better understanding with Russia as well as Germany. This does not mean that the French radicals are as friendly to the Germans, for the bitterness of feeling engendered by the war has not been erased. The questions at issue are not sentimental but economic, and there are evidences that the French radicals will approve a program such as the Dawes-Young commission outlined even though it does involve economic and military evacuation of the Ruhr. On the whole, the feeling here is that the clearing up of the international situation has been advanced rather than retarded by the French elections.

APPROVE PARK ROAD BUILDING

Madison—Improvements in highways in state parks to cost approximately $25,000 were approved today by the state highway commission. Improvements costing $10,000 will be made at the Door county park, $2,000 at the Interstate park, and $2,500 at the Devil's Lake park. The commission also set hearings on proposed changes in the Lake Mills-Waterloo highway and the Merrimac ferry, involving Columbia and Sauk counties.

SUPERINTENDENT CAN OUST TEACHER

Madison—The county school superintendent of a county has power to remove a supervising teacher acting alone, since the county committee on common schools was abolished by the last legislature. Attorney General J. E. Mesersmidt held in a ruling. The county superintendent cannot, however, remove the supervising teacher except when he fails to perform diligently and efficiently his duties, the opinion stated.

GLOOMY PICTURE IS PAINTED BY BARNES

Washington—Signs of "manifest discouragement of the spirit of confident enterprise" in the business world were pointed out by President Coolidge today by Julius H. Barnes, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, who laid the entire blame on the legislative agencies of congress.

D. A. R. Pin, Lost 6 Years Ago in Florida, Recovered

Six years ago Mrs. Ada Pratt Kimberly, one of the charter members of the Daughters of the American Revolution, lost a D. A. R. pin while spending the winter at Jacksonville, Fla. Her name and number were engraved upon it. It was not found and Mrs. Kimberly forgot about it.
Now, after the long period, Mrs. Kimberly will this week get her pin back.
Mrs. Jessie Wheeler, who though residing in Washington, still retains her membership in the Janesville D. A. R. chapter, and represented it at the national congress in session two weeks ago, is the person who is responsible. Mrs. Wheeler was chairman of the lost and found section at the congressional session. Writing, she tells about the strange circumstances through which the pin was returned after six years.
"I couldn't locate owner. My thrill in the lost and found section was when a letter from a 'daughter' in Florida was turned over to me," Mrs. Wheeler writes. "The story she wrote was this. She met a woman the other day who said she had found a D. A. R. pin several years ago and was uncertain as to her best method of finding the owner. She wished the owner to have it. 'There was a name on the pin but the finder did not know how to locate the person of that name. She told her she would report the matter to the Congress and doubtless the owner could be located. She said the name on the pin was Ada Pratt Kimberly and the number 19. I was certain it was our Mrs. Kimberly, but verified my opinion by the records and then notified Mrs. Kimberly.'"
Mrs. Kimberly took no chances. Mrs. Wheeler's report to the Janesville D. A. R. chapter of her work in the lost and found section is interesting. She says: "One morning a woman pushed in and said, 'Did you find my hat?' She said she had left the hat the night before and had no hat to wear to the congress in the morning. A woman standing by looked at the hatless woman, and said after she had gone: 'This is my first year at congress, but I had heard that the woman usually lost everything they possessed so I have my name on the inside of my corsage and on the inside of my hat. We had in stock everything from hat pins to diamond and platinum pins. The newspapers said we had everything but a vanity case and a lip stick. They were mistaken about the vanity case for we have a very pretty gold one.'"
Mrs. Wheeler, as most Janesville people know, is the wife of William Wheeler, former prominent Rock county attorney.

Maxfield Backs Quinlan Ruling on Venue Changes

Judge H. L. Maxfield of the Rock county municipal court expressed himself Wednesday as heartily in accord with the ruling made by Circuit Judge W. B. Quinlan, Marinette, regarding changes of venue in liquor cases. Judge Quinlan holds that changes of venue are not permissible in misdemeanor cases and he puts moonshine cases in that classification. The Quinlan ruling is of particular interest in Janesville in view of the many changes of venue that have been taken from municipal to circuit court in liquor cases.
"While I heartily approve of Judge Quinlan's ruling," said Judge Maxfield, "I am not committing myself on what I shall do on the next petition for a change of venue that comes before me. It may be granted and it may not be granted. I have had the word with the ruling made by Circuit Judge W. B. Quinlan, Marinette, several times before and he has always contended that a change of venue on the grounds of prejudice could not be refused, holding that liquor law violation is a felony and not a misdemeanor."

First Cost is Last Cost
when You Build with Concrete Masonry

How much will your house cost you for upkeep during the next twenty years?
Nearly as much as you paid for it unless it is of permanent construction. And you can't get permanent construction without durable structural materials. They must be proof against fire, storm and decay.
Concrete grows stronger with age. It's fire-safe, wind-safe, and enduring. Concrete Masonry units—block, brick and tile—inheret these qualities.
Concrete Masonry is the modern Basic Building Material.
And it costs little if any more than less durable materials. Through its use you save on painting, repairing, fuel and depreciation. The money that would have gone to pay bills for upkeep goes into your pocket. It helps to pay off the building loan.
And there is the added satisfaction of owning a permanently attractive home with its enduring comfort and protection. That is yours without extra cost.
When you buy or build insist that YOUR home is built for enduring economy—of Concrete Masonry.

Watch for advertisements telling about the many other uses of concrete. And remember that the Portland Cement Association has a free personal service to offer you. Whether you use concrete or have it used for you, this service will give you more for your money.

WOMAN'S BODY IS FOUND IN RIVER
(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
Janesville—The body of Mrs. Ella Baneck, 30, wife of a farmer, was found in Rock river, a short distance above the Hustisford dam. County officials believe the woman ended her own life by drowning Sunday. A search for the missing woman had been in progress for several days and the body was discovered only when the dam had been opened to permit an inspection of the river bottom immediately above it.

PLAN FAREWELL DEMONSTRATION FOR FIRE HORSES

With the new self-raising aerial ladder apparatus expected to be received by the fire department some time this month, or early in June at the latest, arrangements are being made to hold a farewell for the old fire horses and have it in the form of a public demonstration. It is proposed to have a box pulled in the downtown district and have the full department respond, including the last team of horses in the city's service.
At the box from which the alarm is turned in it is planned to have the high school boys' band playing when the department arrives. The horses will be attired in ribbons and flags for their last race to a fire call in the city of Janesville.
Arrangements for the farewell demonstration are being made by Chief C. J. Murphy and Director R. C. Jack of the high school bands.

Await Papers in Appealed Cases

Arraignment of Hugh O'Leary and Silas Blyden in the Rock county municipal court on liquor charges is being held up pending the receipt of papers from the Wisconsin supreme court to complete the records in both cases. O'Leary appealed his case to the supreme court on the grounds he was being placed twice in jeopardy for the same offense, but the higher court declined to pass on the case for lack of jurisdiction in such an action. In the Blyden case where the defendant was sentenced under the general statutes to 18 months in Waupun for second offense under the prohibition laws, the supreme court held the sentence was in error and held that a full sentence was the limit for Blyden, as he could be sentenced only under the prohibition statute.

HIRST SILENT ON RUMORS OF ROW OVER JOB

"I have nothing to say about the matter," early answered A. J. Hirst, Wisconsin highway engineer, when asked Tuesday afternoon regarding the rumors his resignation has been requested by the state administration.
"The governor and I have not had a conference for some time—and I am keeping silent," said Mr. Hirst.
So that's that and no one seems to know what the reported trouble between Gov. J. J. Blaine and the state highway engineer is all about.
